CHAPTER XI.

The day after Harwood's visit to m's home she was returning from an rand when she met Frank Langdon, ank was in a disheveled condition di looked as if he had just been in a ht.

Why, you silly boy, said Ann, "I don't see whose business it is if Mr. Harwood wants to see me get along with my music and has arranged to have me take lessons from a great teacher. I'll thank you and everyone torn and you are a sight."

'A fellow we both know said a rich y was putting up for you," Frank seered. "Paying for your music lesses and things like that. When I said wasn't so, he sneered and winked at me other fellows. I lost my head, I eess, and we've just had a little battle,

I will never stop praising Tanlac, for has restored my health when everye who knew of my dreadful condition in oldea I would ever get well. Two years ago, following an accipit, I began suffering from indigestion it severe stomach trouble. I grew rese so rapidly that my health soon ame perfectly wretched. My stomable came so weak I couldn't eat the plest food or even drink a glass of it without suffering for hours aftered was determed prevous, and all have palpitation of the heart so liy at times I would almost faint, circulation was very poor, I had no or, and weighed only eighty-one inds. It seemed I was just gradually rying by dogrees, and I had almost en up hope. After the best medical treatment set to help me, travel and a change surroundings was advised, so I veled nearly all over the United tes and had treatment every place yent, but always with the same dispointing results. How I stood my foring is more than I can tell, and came so despondent that life seemed dly worth living.
That is just the condition I was in en I began taking Tanlac. When husband first suggested Tanlac I bim I had no faith in it, but the

Misses Feeling Literally Hand Of Law In Court

Glovanni Garoti, proprietor of a rooming establishment on S. Main street, came near feeling the hand of the law literally, Mcnday afternoon during his hearing in sity court on a charge of attempted criminal assault. The man was freed of such charges by Judge Barker. However, he continued to talk loudly in court and is said to have directed some remarks to Betective Al Hurst who had investigated the case. Hurst proceeded to push the Italian's face with an open hand.
Garoti had been haled to court on allegations of Mrs. Frances Enochs, Dyersburg, that she had been detained in the rooming house several days against her will. Testimony was introduced which alleged that the woman came to the hotel and spent a portion of last week there as Garoti's guest. Counsel for Garoti charged that she registered first at the place with another man.

Mrs. Enochs, formerly a carnival follower, left the station after Garoti's trial. She had been in the matron's quarters since Saturday night when she complained of the man's misconduct.

These days of thrift and greater earning ability are showing themselves in the increasing number of accounts that parents are opening for their children, entering school for the first time. It seems such a thoughtful thing to do, that we just mention it as a possibility for others to create ambition early.

The more pride a good tailor has in his craft, the better will be his individual work, and the more satisfactory his output.

We never believed at Ridgelys that any art was superior to that of talloring, either in its own essential beauty or in its practical use to mankind.

So, while we would have achieved greater production volume and possibly more profit by easier methods, we have preferred to rank as artists rather than as me-
